Graduate Credit

Module participants may receive one graduate credit from UNLV for successful completion of this module. To receive credit, participants must enroll in the UNLV course (a representative will be available to facilitate this process) and pay UNLV directly for the credit. It is not possible to directly apply grant stipends for payment to UNLV.

Course Purpose

The purpose of this Teaching American History grant is to introduce teachers of students in grades three through five to distinct periods from American history while preparing them to teach those eras in their classrooms. Modules occurring during each of the four years of the grant will focus on a different historical periods and different pedagogical themes. The historical content of this module addresses ways American history influenced Nevada and the West. The pedagogical component will focus on utilizing primary sources available in digitized collections to teach Nevada history and geography.

Knowledge

This module will enhance teacher knowledge and context relating to the history of Nevada and the West and their role in the history of the United States. The content focus will be on the evolution of the state and region, and with a focus on their relationship to American history as a whole. Required readings include texts that provide both a historical summary and analysis of Nevada history as well as documents related to that history. Module sessions will include lectures and discussions highlighting state history, primary source analysis, and hands-on teaching activities.

The pedagogical focus of the module will provide intermediate-level teachers with an ability to find and access primary sources for the purposes of authenticating historical knowledge and engaging students in historical inquiry. Teachers will use digital collections to locate original documents, images, sound, and video and encourage their students to engage in synthesis and evaluation in a manner that relates general American history to Nevada history. Teachers will also engage in numerous hands-on classroom activities that reinforce Nevada historical content.

Teachers will learn to use:

- Primary sources as teaching tools;
- Technology methods for accessing and saving original historic content;
- Techniques for teaching that incorporate primary sources; and,
- Other examples of engaging techniques related to delivery of Nevada content.

Throughout the process, teachers will learn to ensure hands-on/minds-on learning and interactivity.

Performance

Module participants will complete two major projects. First, teachers will write a report based on the textbook, the document book, and their own study of Nevada's history (see book report format). Second, teachers will create a "primary sources teaching kit" including primary sources from digital collections, activities using those sources, and historical background information related to the activities and sources. Teachers will also identify Nevada history standards addressed in their self-developed teaching kits.

Upon completion of all required assignments, teacher participants will have met both history and content pedagogy objectives as outlined below.

Historical content objectives include:

- Teachers will identify contributing factors relating to Nevada's evolution as a state;
- Teachers will describe how American history influenced Nevada and the West, and how Nevada and the West influenced the nation; and,
- Teachers will identify key figures, ideas, and events in the history of the U.S., the West, and Nevada.

Content pedagogy objectives include:

- Teachers will view primary sources as a mainstay of history education;
- Teachers will access digitized collections to learn historical content and collect primary sources for use in their classrooms;
- Teachers will use primary sources for teaching history;
- Teachers will create primary source kits that include sources and standards-based, historically accurate activities; and,
- Teachers will encourage inquiry and research-based approaches when delivering instruction to intermediate-level students.

Disposition

Upon completion of this module, third through fifth grade teachers will have the ability to competently plan and deliver historically accurate, standards-based instruction that relies heavily on historical inquiry and primary sources. This planned instruction will require teachers to access digitized collections. Teachers will use technology skills to access and record self-created instructional plans.

Code of Honor

Nevada Department of Education

There is a clear expectation that all students will perform academic tasks with honor and integrity, with the support of parents, staff, faculty, administration, and the community. The learning process requires students to think, process, organize and create their own ideas. Throughout this process, students gain knowledge, self-respect, and ownership in the work that they do. These qualities provide a solid foundation for life skills, impacting people positively throughout their lives. Cheating and plagiarism violate the fundamental learning process and compromise personal integrity and one's honor. Students demonstrate academic honesty and integrity by not cheating, plagiarizing or using information unethically in any way.

What is Cheating?

Cheating or academic dishonesty can take many forms, but always involves the improper taking of information from and/or giving of information to another student, individual, or other source. Examples of cheating can include, but are not limited to:

- Taking or copying answers on an examination or any other assignment from another student or other source
- Giving answers on an examination or any other assignment to another student
- Copying assignments that are turned in as original work
- Collaborating on exams, assignments, papers, and/or projects without specific teacher permission
- Allowing others to do the research or writing for an assigned paper

- Using unauthorized electronic devices
- Falsifying data or lab results, including changing grades electronically

What is Plagiarism?

Plagiarism is a common form of cheating or academic dishonesty in the school setting. It is representing another person's works or ideas as your own without giving credit to the proper source and submitting it for any purpose. Examples of plagiarism can include, but are not limited to:

- Submitting someone else's work, such as published sources in part or whole, as your own without giving credit to the source
- Turning in purchased papers or papers from the Internet written by someone else
- Representing another person's artistic or scholarly works such as musical compositions, computer programs, photographs, drawings, or paintings as your own
- Helping others plagiarize by giving them your work

All stakeholders have a responsibility in maintaining academic honesty. Educators must provide the tools and teach the concepts that afford students the knowledge to understand the characteristics of cheating and plagiarism. Students must produce work that is theirs alone, recognizing the importance of thinking for themselves and learning independently, when that is the nature of the assignment. Adhering to the Code of Honor for the purposes of academic honesty promotes an essential skill that goes beyond the school environment. Honesty and integrity are useful and valuable traits impacting one's life.
